

WEEKEND REVIEW - JANUARY 28, 2017

I can't believe we are approaching the 100th day of school. It has been a spectacular school year!

THE GREAT BOOK DETECTIVES A message from Mrs. Erni...

The Great Book Detectives, grades third through ninth, have been working hard to solve the latest mystery. I hope we can get that antagonist back in his book before more incidents are caught on our camera. I'm really thinking he has been caught, but I have a feeling another antagonist is getting to break out of their book. Oh, my. Although they haven't escaped yet, you may want to ready your traps.

For third term, our Great Book Detectives (3rd-9th) will be asked to write a 5-sentence character sketch on a character from a book they have just read to earn clues. As soon as the antagonist escapes, throwing those clues all over the library, you can start bringing in your character sketches for clues. I will certainly let you know when the next antagonist escapes. Keep your eyes peeled at the next Tuesday Talks.

Oh, if you aren't sure what a character sketch is, we will be learning about them in the library. Come to your next library visit ready to write a character sketch and earn your first clue - when they arrive. Who will it be? Oh, the anticipation is so exciting.

GRADE 3 THINKING CAP DAY

The 3rd graders only may wear their thinking caps on Tuesday January 31st for winning the grade-level Great Book Detectives clue race.

PARENT TEACHER CONFERENCES

Parent Teacher Conferences are Wednesday, February 15 from 1:00-7:00pm and Thursday, February 16 from 1:00 - 7:00 pm, and on Friday, February 17 as needed. Please look for sign up information from the K-6 teachers. The Junior High Conferences will be open house style on Wednesday and Thursday. The JH teachers will be at the school Friday afternoon and available as needed.

BOOK FAIR

Book Fair Volunteers are needed! We rely on the great volunteers to help support our students and providing access to books they want and need. Follow this link to participate in the education of your student.
